Passion

Clothes came first, buildings came after

I grew up wandering shops, asking how things should be placed to sell better.

Observe

I look from the inside, out to the people

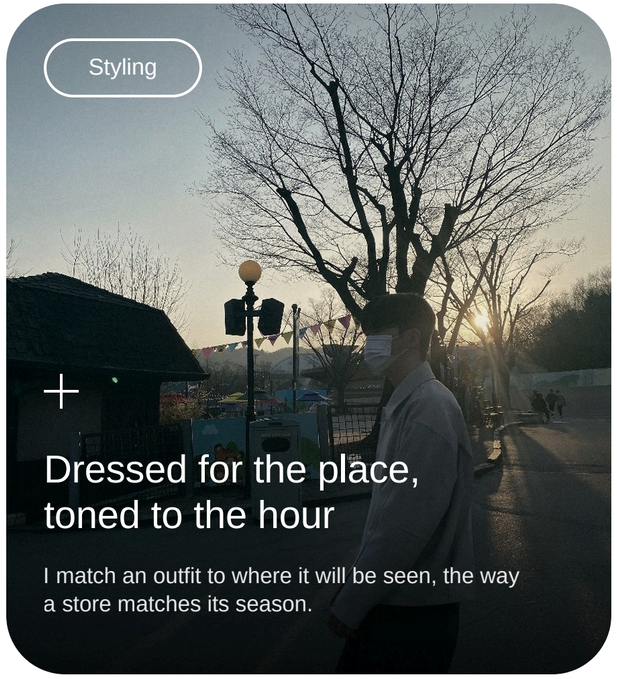

Behind the glass I watch what makes someone stop, look in and smile.

Display

A window should hold the passer-by

Light, height and one point of colour — architecture taught me where the eye lands.

Styling

Dressed for the place, toned to the hour

I match an outfit to where it will be seen, the way a store matches its season.
